Cease and desist ordered May 17, 2007; April 21, 2008; March 16, 2012; August 24, 2012; April 4, 2013

Does NOT provide bartender certification or license.

Original license date 7/12/94; licensed revoked 1/5/07; surety bond cancelled; continues to operate illegally (12/19/2014), offering "certification," CHE has received several complaints of overcharges, duplicate charges, and failure to make refunds.

2/2010 additional complaints about the school not making refunds.

3/15/2012 Story on wistv.com reported that ABC Bartending intends to open new school site in Myrtle Beach; unlicensed school sites in Charleston and Greenville are also listed on school's website. Ordered to cease and desist operating all sites in SC.

8/24/2012 Commission received copies of advertisements run in Charleston's Post and Courier newspaper, offering "certification" in one ad and a four-hour course in another. School's website still lists Charleston and Greenville sites, plus a new site in the Myrtle Beach area.

5/14/2014 SC State Law Enforcement Division (SLED) arrested Chris Nelson for operating the school without a license.

Fox Carolina Headline (May 12, 2014):

SLED: Man charged in running Greenville bartending school without license

12/19/2014 Reports of continuing sites of SC, NC, and Louisiana. Information distributed to other state licensing entities via NASASPS.

Cease and desist issued 3/25/2010

In 1996 the Commission on Higher Education communicated with Ralph Maxwell about the training and certification services offered at ASPT from Greenville. The contention of Maxwell was that the training was distance learning and not within the jurisdiction of CHE because it was continuing education offered only to individuals who were already employed in the medical field and who were members of ASPT. ASPT filed a suit against CHE and asked the court to determine it exempt from the Commission's oversight. The suit was dismissed by agreement of the attorneys for Maxwells and AG with CHE retaining the authority to proceed with injunction from ASPT with additional evidence that the organization offered vocational training without enforcing its requirements for employment in the field.

In May 2009 Helen Maxwell contacted CHE about licensure to offer EKG and other training programs; however, she did not apply for a license. March 25, 2010, a student enrolled in EKG and Patient Care Technician submitted a complaint about the school. It made a full refund to the student. CHE issued a letter to cease and desist; also, provided another packet for initial licensure. 4/6/2010 Cathy Williamson, director at the Charleston location, called and said they are preparing the application materials.

Updated 4/7/10. CHE received an application for initial license on April 13, 2010, and provided initial feedback on April 22, 2010. April 28, 2010, discussion with attorney for Maxwell about licensing requirements. Review of application suspended until information from AG that the character requirements for eligibility would exclude eligibility for licensure. 5/24/10 CHE executive staff reviewing the options.

8/5/2010 CHE received AG's opinion confirming that CHE has authority to deny licensure based on the Maxwells having owned a school for which SC Department of Education revoked the license.

8/12/2010 CHE notified attorney for Maxwells of denial of licensure for Helen and/or Ralph Maxwell as owners based on failure to meet the "good reputation" criteria in CHE regulation 62-6.

9/13/2010 Richard Sisco, landlord of ASPT, called and asked for documentation that CHE would not license the school. They are using it as a reason to break the lease on the facilities.

10/12/2010 Roman Hammes, attorney, notified CHE that he no longer represents the Maxwells and it is his understanding that they will not contest the decision of CHE to deny licensure.
